- Suggested Itinerary -

Day 1 - London To Brig

Catch the Eurostar this morning from London to Paris, then connect with a high-speed TGV service to Lausanne in French-speaking Switzerland. Here, you board a Swiss domestic service which takes you through the increasingly-dramatic landscape and eventually to Brig, your base for the night. Check in at the Ambassador Hotel (or similar) for your overnight stay before heading out for dinner in the centre of town. If you have time, why not break your journey with a night en route in Paris, Basel or Lausanne?

Day 2 - Glacier Express To Chur

Board the Glacier Express and enjoy the scenery as the train climbs alongside the source of the Rhône and across to Andermatt, before climbing to over 2,000 metres at the Oberalp Pass. You will follow the course of the Rhine as you make your way into Chur. Commentary is provided along the way and a lunch is served on board (payable locally). Chur is Switzerland's oldest town and sits on the Rhine in eastern Switzerland. Check in at the convenient ABC Swiss Quality Hotel (or similar) for a 2-night stay.

Day 3 - Bernina Express Day Trip

Make your way back to the railway station in Chur in the morning for another beautiful scenic journey, the Bernina Express. The journey starts off towards St Moritz, crossing the iconic Landwasser Viaduct amongst others, and sweeping through stunning landscape before crossing a short way into Italy and arriving at the town of Tirano. After a brief wander around and lunch in Tirano, it's time to re-board the train and head back, this time offering a varied perspective on the scenery as you will be travelling in the reverse direction. Arrive back in Chur in time for dinner and a well-earned night's rest at your hotel.

Day 4 - Chur To London

Leaving Chur behind this morning, you make the journey back to Basel, with a return TGV service back to Paris. From here, take a rapid metro to the Gare du Nord and connect to your Eurostar back to London.
